From Our Special Correspondent.

After a short, to the most disastrous, visit to Pesh and Vienna, I am again in Italy, where public attention is riveted to the annexation of Venetia, and to the forthcoming state trial of Admiral Persano. As to the first, 646,789 votes were cast in a population of 2,485,980, out of which 646,647 voted for the annexation to Italy under King Victor Emmanuel, 70 against it, and 72 for an independent Republic. Of course, such a ballot may be called unanimous; it was cast with the greatest enthusiasm, which recalled the ballot of Tuscany and the Emilia in 1859, or of Naples and Sicily in 1860. Still, one feature surprised everybody by its novelty in Italy: the priests, the monks and the bishops, the Cardinal Patriarch of Venice not excepted. His Eminence Archbishop Trevisan went out to the polls and voted for annexation; they preach sermons and publish pastorals, in which they speak of Italian unity as of a blessing, and chant to deum for King Victor Emmanuel. Now, it is a well-known fact, that until recently the Roman Catholic clergy was all over Italy the most open enemy of the King and of the new kingdom, that many priests and bishops had to be exiled or imprisoned for their undisciplined hostility to the Constitution, to civil marriage, and to the abolition of the convents and monasteries. It is likewise known that the priests at all times under the instructions which they get from Rome. The sudden change of priestly politics in Venetia is, therefore, interpreted as a sign of the conversion of the Roman See to the new kingdom, and as a sign of the Pope's readiness to come to terms with the kingdom, now when the French garrison is preparing to leave the eternal city forever. From Rome, however, I had reports to the contrary, but they were conflicting, and, therefore, represent rather the opinions among the cardinals and bishops than facts. According to some well-informed people, the Pope has prepared to leave Rome with the French, and to take an asylum at Malta. Such was the advice of Meneghini, the Cardinal Secretary of State, who, however, is believed to be a secret enemy of the Pope, who believes that an exile of the Pope might cause a revival among all the Roman Catholic nations, court and kings, which ultimately would lead to a restoration and exaltation of the Pope's power, both temporal and spiritual.

The other pole less well-informed persons assure me that the old Pope has made up his mind to die a martyr at St. Peter's tomb. He clings, therefore, to Rome, ready to fall victim to revolution, which, according to his words, is destined to kill him and all the cardinals. There is no doubt that such an idea often haunts his mind; but if the Pope desires to die a martyr, and to become a saint, Cardinal Meneghini has been struck a few days after the last steamer left, and he is now in the hands of the French.

The news is very conflicting. According to official accounts, the insurgents are completely discouraged and are begging for peace. According to the reports of the priests, however, the Venetians are never in better spirits, and are more confident than ever of final success. The official La Tribuna says the Venetians are victorious at every point. The Greeks are defeated, and the war practically at an end. The Venetians, however, have the worst of it in every

THE FENIAN TRIALS.

CLOSING PROCEEDINGS—PRESENTMENT OF THE GRAND JURY—MR. MCKENZIE TO MOVE FOR A NEW TRIAL.

TORONTO, Nov. 16.—The court opened at 10 a. m., Chief Justice J. Wilson presiding. At 10 p. m. Thomas Smith, who was arrested in this city for conspiring against the throne of Her Majesty, was discharged on his own recognizance.

Mr. McNabb informed his Lordship that Elsie Burton was still confined in jail, who was arrested during the time of the raid, and had since been suspected of being a lunatic. It was evident that he was in no way connected with the Fenians. He had three times written to the American Consul, and had been seen him as to having to see if he would not forward the prisoner to his home; but he understood that the American Consul had no funds to appropriate for such a purpose, unless he paid it out of his pocket.

His Lordship said it would be better to pay his fare to the bridge.

Mr. McNabb said he would see the manager of the Great Western Railroad and see if he could get a pass to the bridge.

The Grand Jury then entered court and handed in the following presentment:

The Grand Jury of the County of York, for the County of York and the County of York, do hereby present, that the Court of Oyer and Terminer and General Jail Delivery, present that, having been notified by the Crown Council that their services would not be required for the trial of the Fenians, they have been directed by the Court and Crown Council to present the names of the Fenians who have been arrested during the long session which is about to close. The Jury cannot separate without expressing their admiration of the manner in which the Fenians have been treated, and their sympathy with the Fenians, who have been so unjustly and cruelly treated. They have been brought against them, and they have been treated with the same cruelty and injustice as the Fenians themselves.

The Fenians have been treated with the same cruelty and injustice as the Fenians themselves. They have been brought against them, and they have been treated with the same cruelty and injustice as the Fenians themselves.

THE NEW DEMOCRATIC DOCTRINE—COURSE OF THE INTELLIGENCER—THE FEELING IN THE SOUTH—BUSINESS IN THE AUDITOR'S OFFICE—THE NEW WHITE HOUSE—OBITUARY—PERSONAL—INDIAN AFFAIRS—PROPOSED PRIZE-FIGHT.

WASHINGTON, Friday, Nov. 16, 1866.
The Intelligencer, the organ of President Johnson, hitherto most bitterly opposed to the colored race, astonished its readers this morning by following in the wake of The Chicago Times. Its editorial says that "there never can be stable peace in this country until the colored race are made entirely equal before the law in regard to civil rights. It is desirable that after long and injurious agitation, the South should spontaneously do this." The Star of this evening advises the South to accept the Constitutional amendment.

The compromise foreshadowed in correspondence as likely to be proposed on the part of the South, as a means of extricating the country from the dilemma in which it is involved in the matter of reconstruction, appears to be settling into the shape of a compromise of the whole difficulty, and a secure general amnesty for participation in the Rebellion, and a restoration of their former status in the Union. The subject is receiving much attention, and is the theme of general discussion in political circles here especially.

There is reason to believe that the conference at the White House, the South of which has been kept out of the ordinary leading men, with the President, was on this matter, and that Mr. Johnson desires to get it in his shape as to enable him to bring it out in his annual message. There is much speculation as to the view Congress will take of the subject. The proposition is favorably received by many even of those who are considered as extreme Radicals, who believe that with the ballot in the hands of the negro, the South of which has been kept out of the control of the secession leaders without other restrictions. This is the question absorbing public attention here now, and it will doubtless soon agitate the whole country North and South. All admit the necessity for a prompt and equitable settlement of the existing difficulties, and if this proposition is adopted, it is capable of being carried out. It is believed it will, both North and South, the embarrassments of the situation will be obviated.

Gov. Swann of Maryland arrived here this evening, and had an interview with the President. Randall of Pennsylvania, Rogers of New Jersey, and other Democratic Congressmen are here, in close attendance on the President, who is expected to make certain appointments which will have to be made before the reassembling of Congress shall prevent the summary exercise of the appointing power by the President. This being Cabinet day, but few visitors were received during the day, but this evening there was quite a large gathering in the ante-rooms, and the President received a number of callers.

The prize Mary Clinton, captured during the Rebellion by the steamer Powhatan, has been this day decreed by the Fourth Auditor for division among the captors. The Subsistence and Quartermaster Divisions of the Third Auditor's office have just succeeded in catching up with their work, having been behind time since the close of the war, and the President has ordered that the officers in the offices will be discharged, as it requires but a small force to continue the routine business.

W. W. Corcoran has made a proposition to donate to the Government his magnificent estate, lying two miles from the city, for a Presidential Park, on condition that the committee appointed by Congress to select a site for a national cemetery, should select a site on the estate. Corcoran's offer is being eagerly viewed with a view to the location of the park north-west of the city, where the face of the country presents superior natural advantages for executing the designs of the Government on a magnificent scale, and the Chairman of the Committee has expressed an eagerness on which to examine the estate, and to have it located with the senior Mr. Blair. It is probable notwithstanding Mr. Corcoran's handsome offer, that the north-western part of the city will be selected, on account of its excellent adaptation to landscape and ornamental gardening.

Henry E. Daniels, a clerk in the office of the Secretary of the Interior, died this morning of consumption. He was a native of New York, and had been in the service of the Government for many years. He was a man of great energy and ability, and his death is a great loss to the Government.

Deceased, before he came here, was a prominent lawyer at Windsor Locks, Conn.; was recently appointed Private Secretary to Admiral Dahlgren, and was preparing to accompany the Admiral on a sea voyage, when he departed. He was a very estimable man, and his death is a great loss to the Government.

Brevet Major-Gen. J. B. Kiddoo, on duty with the Freedmen's Bureau in Texas, is in town. He called on Gen. Howard to-day to consult with him on the condition of affairs in that State.

The "Fanny," a small schooner, arrived on account of a pugilistic encounter to come off in its vicinity between two members of the fraternity—English and Carr—who have figured conspicuously in the P. R.

The Bateman Opera Troupe was welcomed back to Washington last night by a large, fashionable and delighted audience.

The Commissioner of Indian Affairs has received intelligence from a special agent recently appointed to look after the Cheyenne and Arapahoe Indian tribes, who threatened trouble in reference to the Smoky Hill route in Kansas, they claiming that they have not needed to the Government the right of travel over that route to the Far West. The agent reports that everything is quiet and peaceful, and that the Indians are well satisfied with the arrangement.

On Monday next it is expected that the great Horse Fair will be opened at the National Course, on the Eastern Branch, near Washington. The premiums already provided amount to over $6,000, and it is probable that the sum will be increased. On Monday there will be two races, the first for all trotters owned in the District and Maryland, for $150, and the second for all runners for $100. On Tuesday a purse of $1,500 is up for all trotters; on Wednesday, $600 for pacers; Thursday, $200 for runners; Friday, $500 for trotters; Saturday, a great trot for $3,000; and on Monday week, $100 for double teams. The famous horses, Dexter, Patches, and Sam Rich, will be entered, and it is very probable that a race will be made between the fastest trotter, Dexter, and the pacer, Megoeater.
